

Foreward

On behalf of the executive and committee of the St Albans Cricket Club, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you to the 100th anniversary celebrations of our club.

We hope that you enjoyed your centennial weekend and that you have been able to attend several or all of the activities that the organising committee of Selwyn Cox, Graham Curgenven, Scott Mason, Lindsay Serra and myself have organised for you. We also thank Bob Mather and Noel McGregor and their helpers for organising the golf and bowls part of the weekend.

Obviously it has been a time to meet old playing mates and friends, relive the days when you were associated with the St Albans Cricket Club, view old memorabilia and photographs and meet the players who we have now. We are sure that many a yarn has been told or retold over a beer or wine during the various events and many old friendships have been rekindled.

Our club has survived some difficult times: the great depression, war years, ground issues, relegation threats, social concerns, local body and government legislation, lack of numbers and financial setbacks to name a few, but we have weathered these adversities to become one of New Zealand's leading clubs.

The challenge ahead is to make sure a group of administrators, players and supporters are found to continue the present momentum and ensure the history, traditions, profile, success and growth of the club are preserved and fostered.

Taken over a range of criteria we have arguably a top 10 New Zealand cricket club now, but cricket is not played in the 'now'. We must be proactive and open-minded about where cricket and, particularly, club cricket might be positioned in the years to come.

St Albans Cricket Club
president
Alan Jamieson

Cricket may not be played, as we know it now, in 20 or 30 years time. We must be leaders in any change and embrace the new ideas, formats and geographic changes that may evolve or be presented by the authorities, as they strive to keep the game alive and well.

We will never forget all the administrators and former playing members that have got the club to 100. Your work and effort has all contributed to where the club is positioned today.

Good luck to the next generation of players and administrators. Hopefully many of us will meet again when the club celebrates its 125th birthday.

Alan Jamieson
President and Chairman of the Centennial Committee

The St Albans Cricket Club would like to acknowledge with thanks the contributions of John Coffey, Duane Pettet and Alan Newton (Toltech Print) who were responsible for the research, writing, statistics and printing of this publication. Thank you.

The formative years

Hagley Park was the home of Canterbury cricket long before the St Albans club came into being. The game was brought to the new colony by the original settlers and a club formed within six months of the arrival of the First Four Ships.

The oval upon which generations of St Albans players have performed was in use by the 1860s and for the next 40 years the United Canterbury and Midland clubs were the backbone of the sport. There was even an earlier St Albans club during the late 19th century.

The Canterbury Cricket Association was formed in 1877, charged with managing the grounds at Hagley Park and administering the sport. It was to be another quarter of a century before the first steps were taken towards introducing district club cricket.

Midland and United, faced with losing their identities, protested but to no avail.

On June 20, 1905, the district scheme was adopted, with Linwood registering 46 players, Riccarton 46, Sydenham 45, St Albans 43, West Christchurch 35, and East Christchurch 34.

St Albans was formed at a general meeting held in the Wesleyan School Room on Rugby Street on August 31, 1905. Tom Reese chaired the meeting and moved the resolution to constitute the club.

The meeting was told the club would have to use Hagley Park in its first season, at a cost of about 35 pounds but it was hoped to have a ground of its own for the following season. A century later we are still here, and happy to be so.

Original club colours of blue with red binding and monogram were changed to navy blue and light blue in 1909/10.

The first day's play

District cricket came somewhat damply to Christchurch, proving inclement weather is by no means a recent problem. St Albans was drawn to play Linwood at Lancaster Park and The Press was severe in its criticism of the playing field.

The ground was hardly fit to play football on, let alone cricket, a great deal of the north end being under water, it reported.

Original St Albans captain A Kinvig lost the toss and St Albans was sent in to bat. An unbeaten 33 by W C H Wigley, an innings described as capital cricket, considering the adverse conditions, got St Albans through to 74.

Linwood lost captain S Orchard with a finger injury while fielding and slumped from 12 for one wicket to 41 all out. K M Ollivier (6-26) and Greenwood (3-14) bowled through the innings.

By stumps St Albans had extended its overall lead to 65 runs with nine wickets in hand. But a game which had started on October 21 was not completed until November 18 because of two rain-outs and the early custom of not playing on New Zealand Cup day at Riccarton.

The St Albans second innings ended at 137, with G W Garrard top-scoring on 42. Linwood needed 171 to win and seemed doomed to defeat at 124 for eight. But E O Farrell and A E Young combined in an unbeaten partnership of 47 to win the game by two wickets.

J S Barrett: played in the first St Albans senior men's side and was later president of the club

St Albans also fielded a second grade team and two third grade sides in its debut season. The second grade side lost by three wickets with Christ's College scoring the winning run in the last available over in the match, despite St Albans having taken an 84-run first innings lead. The third grade A team beat Riccarton B but the St Albans B team lost to Riccarton A.

CRICKET.

SATURDAY'S PLAY.

The various competitions under the auspices of the Canterbury Cricket Association were started on Saturday, when the weather was fine and warm, but the grounds were very heavy owing to the quantity of rain which had fallen during the week, and in nearly every instance the bowlers had the batsmen at their mercy. A fair number of spectators attended at all three grounds. Details.—

FIRST GRADE.

ST. ALBANS v. LINWOOD.

These teams commenced their match at Lancaster Park, where the ground was hardly fit to play football on, let alone cricket, a good deal of the north end being under water. It is therefore not surprising that run-getting was very difficult, and the big wicket was made. O'Brien, the Linwood skipper, won the toss from King, and sent the latter's side to bat. The bowlers had the upper hand, and had the wickets down for 18 runs. A meritorious stand by Weston and Wigley then carried the score to 48, and the innings eventually closed for 44, Wigley carrying out his bat for 33, made by captain cricket, considering the circumstances. H. Head and Head did the bulk of the bowling, and the former trundled excellently, getting good figures. The Linwood bat was even more feeble than that of their opponents had been, the seventh wicket falling with the score at 12. Some spirited hitting by O'Farrell improved the position, and batting a man short, O'Farrell had injured his finger and had to close for 41. Oliver and Greenwood bowled unchanged. St. Albans had forty minutes' batting again, and they had made 32 for two wickets when stumps were drawn. The fielding on both sides was capital, and some very good catches were made.

SECOND GRADE.

Christ's College and St. Albans commenced a match on the former's ground, when St. Albans batted first, and made 116 (W. B. Fox 26, Davey 26 not out, Taylor 18, F. Horner 13, and G. Horner 12); College, 42 (Saunder 19), A. Rutherford bowled best for the College, and Pritchard and O'Brien for St. Albans.

THIRD GRADE.

The contest between St. Albans A and Riccarton B teams began at Hagley Park, when the latter batted first, and made 46 (Anderson 10 and Jones 10). Clarke took eight wickets for 22 runs, and St. Albans replied with 48 (Evans 13 and Thompson 12). Doug took seven wickets for 12 runs for Riccarton, who made 24 for two wickets in their second innings.

St. Albans B and Riccarton A teams commenced a match at Hagley Park, and when stumps were drawn the scores were:—Riccarton, 43 (O. Cagill 12) and 15 for three wickets; St. Albans 80 (Blackwell 24, Feldwick 14, and Blank 10). Deacon bowled best for St. Albans, and Brunsden and Brooker for Riccarton.

FOURTH GRADE.

St. Albans and Sydenham met at Sydenham, when the home team won by an innings and 2 runs. Scores:—St. Albans 60 (Trewick 16 and Tucker 14) and 30; Sydenham 92 (King 53 and Boyd 18). Russell and Wilshire bowled well for the winners.

In consequence of the amount of rain which fell between Tue-day night and an early hour on Saturday, the various cricket grounds were partially under water. When inspected by the Committee they were found to be quite unfit for play, consequently those in authority had no other course open to them than to declare all matches off. Next Saturday being New Zealand Cup Day, the Canterbury Cricket Association, as is customary, has declared all competition matches off.

The summary of the first day's play in the new district competition as it appeared in The Christchurch Press on October 23, 1905

The early years

For several years the quest for a suburban home base occupied the minds of club officials. St Albans Park and Elmwood Park were considered, and there were negotiations with the St Albans Hockey Club and Edgeware Bowling Club. The debate lapsed about 1911 when it was pointed out a transfer from Hagley would financially embarrass the other clubs playing there.

In the light of what became reality many years later, it is interesting to note a meeting was called in 1907 to investigate the formation of a St Albans Ladies Cricket Club. Women would be eligible for membership and allowed to use the club's materials and practice pitches. Nothing came of it.

Representative selections were soon coming the way of St Albans players. Reece and Ollivier were already established in Canterbury teams in the pre-district cricket era, and were followed by H A Bishop, C A Cuff, B B Wood, E E Crawshaw, D M Sandman, R G Hickmott, J S Barrett, and L R Brunton leading up to World War I.

Famous Australian cricketer Victor Trumper, who owned a sports shop in Sydney, provided the sample of the original St Albans blazers and caps after suitable materials had not been available in Christchurch.

St Albans won its first senior championship in 1909/10, rising from last the previous summer. Don Sandman captured 64 wickets and Wood contributed the first double century with 201 against Riccarton.

The title was retained in 1910/11, after a play-off with Sydenham was won on the first innings. Sandman took 84 wickets in the season, still a St Albans record today. He was also a century-maker, along with Crawshaw and Reese.

Sandman had become the club's first New Zealand representative, in 1909, and extended his international career through to 1921.

The World War I years

In 1913/14 Sandman was joined on the tour of Australia by club -mate Hickmott, an outstanding batsman and occasional bowler. Tragically, Lieutenant Rupert Hickmott was killed in action during World War I.

Some enterprise was shown by the third grade B team in hiring a motor lorry to take them to an away game at Kaiapoi - and having the account sent to the club for payment. A less than amused committee decided to collect the money from the players.

There was to be little humour in club annual reports during the war years. Typical was the resolution expressing regret that secretary V M Edgar had resigned to join the Expeditionary Forces. Edgar was later wounded and invalided home.

The club sent Christmas boxes to its members serving overseas. The 1918/19 annual report listed Geo. M Haigh, R G Hickmott, and G J Harrison as having been killed in action, and R Leeming having died of sickness. Of 20 other members, five had been wounded. R A Parton was awarded the Military Medal.

On a happier note, Tom Reese became the club's first life member in 1918. By then he had made 114 appearances for St Albans. He was later to become president of the Canterbury Cricket Association.

Don Sandman (seen here in 1971, aged 81): former St Albans record holder with 737 wickets at 16.14 apiece

The 1920s

The 1920s were notable for prolific scoring, prompting images of glorious summer afternoons at Hagley Oval. Frank Woods led the way with three double centuries in the 1923/24 season, surely one of the greatest feats in Canterbury club cricket.

Woods hammered a club record 234 against Riccarton, 223 against West Christchurch, and 222 not out against East Christchurch, finishing the season with 1006 runs at an average of 77.38. He was also club secretary.

The club scene was gradually changing. Residential qualifications were lifted, and the High School Old Boys and Christ's College clubs were formed. It was feared the formation of old boys clubs would weaken those already in existence and members were reminded of their loyalty to St Albans. In 1925 a conference was held to discuss a possible amalgamation between St Albans and High School Old Boys.

At a smoke concert after the 1926/27 season a gold medal was presented to the most improved player, a young fellow named Frank O'Brien. That launched a career which extended to a record 237 appearances. By the time he stopped in 1954 O'Brien was to play more innings, score more runs, more centuries and half-centuries, and hold more catches than any other St Albans player.

That summer Neil Dorreen (226 not out) and Harry North (65 not out) shared an unfinished third wicket partnership of 311 runs against West Christchurch. With Woods (105) and Cyril Crawford, who had toured Australia with the New Zealand team the previous season, having opened the innings with a 134-run stand, St Albans had the luxury of declaring at 505 for four.

Within two years of New Zealand being accorded full international status M L (Curly) Page became St Albans' first Test cricketer. An All Black in 1928, Page had transferred from High School Old Boys for the 1930/31 season. He toured England during the next southern winter and captained New Zealand in a home series against South Africa.

Financially, the club and many of its members were battling. Concessions were made to those who found it difficult to pay their full dues in times of depression. The 1932 annual report disclosed a bank balance of just four pounds, with 10 times that amount owed in unpaid subscriptions.

In 1934 St Albans was offered the chance to relocate to Rugby Park. It was declined on the grounds that the costs had not been clearly defined, a drop in membership numbers was probable, and because of the history and traditions being built up at Hagley Park.

St Albans gained some much needed bowling depth to complement its free scoring batsmen in the mid-1930s. Tom Burtt took the first 20 or so of his 754 wickets, and Ted Mulcock claimed the first of his 523 victims. Mulcock went on to capture a hat-trick in an analysis of eight for 61 while playing for Canterbury against Otago.

St Albans club members take to the field for a practice game on the opening day of the 1932/33 season

The World War II years

War clouds were again looming, however, and St Albans began losing players such as Canterbury wicket-keeper Bob Webb to the First Echelon. Christmas parcels were again on the agenda, and club member E Berry earned the Distinguished Flying Cross for bravery while serving with the Royal Air Force.

Counting those undergoing military training, it was estimated 50 per cent of the active membership was in uniform. St Albans was at first able to maintain its individual identity as army and air force sides joined the senior competition in 1940/41. News came through that Webb had been wounded and taken prisoner in the second Libyan campaign.

The player drain inevitably led to amalgamations, with West Christchurch in 1942/43 and West Old Boys in 1943/44. Sydenham had amalgamated with East Christchurch, Riccarton with Old Collegians, and Lancaster Park with Old Boys to play against four services sides.

The post-war years

When normal competitions resumed with a 10-team competition - with the bottom two to be relegated at summer's end - St Albans had the mortification to finish ninth, ahead of only Technical Old Boys. It was only saved from losing its senior status by the support of the other original open clubs.

They feared that closed clubs would eventually be in the majority. Old Boys and Old Collegians had been joined by West Old Boys and Technical Old Boys. St Albans was reprieved by a motion that the senior competition be comprised of six open clubs and two closed clubs.

St Albans justified its retention by climbing to fifth in 1946/47, and providing left-arm spin bowler Tom Burtt to the New Zealand team which played Walter Hammond's English tourists. Burtt, also skilled with a hockey stick, thus became a double international. He was to capture more than 100 wickets on the 1949 tour to England, and represent New Zealand until 1953.

In 1948/49 the seniors created a club record high score of 513 against West Christchurch, the innings occupying the whole first day. English player-coach L F Townsend led the way with 105 not out, Graham Coull made 101, Frank O'Brien 91, Zin Harris 89, and Jack Smith 59. A week later West's openers raced on 247 runs before the side collapsed from 350 for four to be all out for 419.

The early 1950s

The 1950s began with an annual report recording St Albans successes in the first, second grade A, and fourth grade A competitions, and heralded the arrival of Parke Gerald Zinzen (Zin) Harris with an innings of 49 for Canterbury against Australia. He developed into one of the very best batsmen in an era packed with good cricketers and personalities.

Burtt's international career ended just as that of stylish batsman and accurate off-spinner Matt Poore began, in the home Tests against the 1952/53 South Africans. Poore was then chosen for the return tour to that country, while Harris was considered unlucky to miss out after a rain-affected trial. Leg-spinner and former club member Bill Bell was also in the touring team.

Throughout its history St Albans had shared with West Christchurch the pavilion now occupied by the Canterbury umpires association. It was by no means the splendid, refurbished building that we see today. It was too small for its purpose, and constantly in need of repair.

The first serious moves towards financing the present pavilion were taken in 1953 when Cyril Crawford, who followed his playing days with an equally illustrious administrative career, came up with the inspiration to raffle what was then the only child's pedal car in the country. That put 500 pounds in the kitty.

At that stage it was intended to replace the old pavilion with a joint venture between St Albans and West Christchurch. But when the Christchurch City Council declared the building unsafe, the matter became more urgent and West officials admitted they were not able to contribute towards the costs of finding a new pavilion.

Bill Bell: one of 58 St Albans players to represent Canterbury (and later New Zealand)

The 50th jubilee year and late 1950s

The club's 50th anniversary was celebrated in style when the first grade side won the 1954/55 championship. Harris became Canterbury captain, leading club-mates Burtt, Poore, and Coull in red-and-black. Poore played for New Zealand against England, and he was joined by Harris on the pioneering tour to India and Pakistan of 1955/56. Burtt retired from first-class cricket, receiving a tumultuous reception at Lancaster Park when going out to bat against the MCC.

Tom Burtt batting late in his career - he fell just two runs short of notching up 4000 for St Albans in first grade cricket

The jubilee was celebrated in March 1955, and a special Monday afternoon match was played between teams captained by Bob Webb and Trevor Tucker. A dinner was held at the United Service Hotel in Cathedral Square, with wives and girlfriends invited to a film evening and supper at Wilding Park a month later. Such were the customs of the day.

Just when plans were about to be prepared for the new pavilion it was learned the defunct Addington Tennis Club wanted to dispose of its building in Poulsen Street. The St Albans tender of 175 pounds was successful, and a contractor agreed to move it to Hagley Oval for 530 pounds. More raffle tickets were distributed to cover the costs.

Play on the first day of the 1956/57 season at Hagley Oval - the building at the left of those in the background is the new St Albans pavilion, moved to the ground from Addington just a few weeks earlier

The original St Albans pavilion as it was in 1957 - it is now the Canterbury umpires' pavilion, located next door to the new pavilion

A contemporary report in The Press described our headquarters as one of the few structures to be built from the top down. In its original form it was too tall to be transported under overhead wires, so the top floor was taken to Hagley first and supported on piles. The lower floor was then placed under it, much as one might shut a drawer.

After years of overcrowding in company with West Christchurch, the players enjoyed the luxury of a fine social area, spacious changing facilities, and a magnificent view overlooking the oval. The balcony was added in the spring of 1965 and extensive renovations were made to the ground and top floors a decade later.

St Albans' third Test player of the 1950s was all-rounder (batsman, bowler and wicket-keeper) Sam Guillen, who had settled here after touring with the West Indies in 1952 and first played with West Christchurch. Guillen was to share in New Zealand's first-ever Test triumph - ironically, against his homeland - at Eden Park in 1956. Team-mate Noel McGregor, then from Otago, later joined St Albans after moving north.

Sam Guillen: a true all-rounder - batsman, bowler, wicket-keeper and played Test cricket for two different countries

The 1960s and early 1970s

Zin Harris was cheered from afar by his fellow Saints, who listened on radio as he raised his Test century in the victory at Cape Town in 1961/62. Thirty years earlier Curly Page had been the club's first Test centurion at Lord's.

At a lesser representative level Alan Taylor captured all 10 wickets (nine caught, one leg before wicket) for 83 runs off 28.5 overs of medium-paced toil for Canterbury B against Wairarapa at Masterton.

Another championship success in 1963/64, under the astute leadership of Alan Bailey, was notable for the arrival of West Australian medium-fast bowler Ken Ferries. In his team report Bailey expressed the hope Ferries could be persuaded to stay one more season. Stay he did, for Ferries was senior captain in the 75th anniversary season, 1979/80.

Hard-hitting all-rounder Bruce Taylor was chosen as the club's 10th national representative in 1966/67 during an all too brief term with St Albans. New Zealand fast bowler Murray Webb was to spend the 1972/73 summer at Saints.

There was strength in depth during the early 1970s. Jimmy Mills and Peter Guerin shared a 310-run second grade opening partnership against Christ's College, only one short of what was believed to be the club record. Meanwhile, long-serving Ted Mulcock was trundling away towards his 900-plus wickets in the President's grade.

Ken Ferries: 17-year stint at St Albans after arriving from Western Australia

Zin Harris: became the second St Albans player to score a Test century after Curly Page

Murray Webb: tearaway quick bowler who played three Tests for New Zealand

Wayne Burtt: one of St Albans' many Canterbury players in the 1960s and 1970s

Bruce Taylor: brief time at St Albans during his New Zealand representative career

The men's and women's clubs amalgamate

In 1975 negotiations were opened to amalgamate with the St Albans Women's Cricket Club. Following a trend, the two clubs decided on a trial association during which the women would have the use of net practices and club facilities. The knot was officially tied at a special meeting in the spring of 1977.

Established in 1937, St Albans had won more women's championships than any other club at the time of the merger and in its heyday fielded two evenly selected senior teams which often keenly contested the title.

Founding members Helen Steere, Joan Stevens and Peg Hooper at the 21st anniversary of the St Albans Women's Cricket Club in 1958

Its formation could be traced back to the demise of a High School Old Girls club. Of the three enthusiasts, two lived in St Albans - Helen Steere and Joan Stevens - and wanted to continue playing. They joined with Peg Hooper and the naming of the fledgling club as St Albans was not difficult, with Malvern Park to be the home ground in that suburb. It remained the club's base until the late 1960s.

The feats of legendary Phyllis Blackler are interwoven into the history of St Albans women's cricket. She was a veritable female W G Grace, her representative career spanning an incredible 35 years and including tours to Australia in 1938 and 1958 and England in 1954 and 1966.

Blackler's highest Test score of 68 was achieved on that farewell tour; in 1946/47 she had made Canterbury's first double century; and she bowled with success at all levels.

When Ann McKenna captained Canterbury against England in 1968/69 she had seven club-mates alongside her. McKenna and Janice Stead, who had toured England in 1966, played in the Tests against the tourists, while Stead, Jackie Lord, Denise Jolley, Sue Rattray, Vicki Burtt (née McGregor) and Sheree Harris earned international honours in the 1970s.

A plethora of St Albans players were selected for New Zealand in the 1960s and 1970s. Among them were (clockwise from top left): Ann McKenna, Jackie Lord, Sue Rattray and Vicki Burtt.

The mid to late 1970s

Meanwhile, skilful left-arm spinner Stephen Boock spent the first of his three seasons at St Albans in 1975/76 and became our fifth Test player and 11th to wear the black cap. Two years later Boock set a national first-class record of 66 wickets, shared in the momentous first victory over England, and then toured that country before, sadly, returning to Dunedin.

St Albans pioneered twilight cricket on Monday evenings, with players enjoying both their games on Hospital Corner and the after-match functions in the pavilion. The club also arranged the first indoor tournament to be held in the South Island, for men and women, at the then new Pioneer Stadium. Another diversion was the formation of AFC St Albans, playing in the Canterbury Football Association competitions.

Most attention in a sporting club inevitably falls upon the players and the administrators. But the name of Ron Johnson, the senior scorer for more than 30 years, will always have a proud place in our history. Ron worked quietly and efficiently in the background to make life more comfortable for so many of our members and also gave great service to Canterbury and the Riccarton club. The Government recognised his services to the Post Office with an appropriate award and St Albans acknowledged his selfless deeds with life membership.

Stephen Boock: became St Albans' fifth Test player before moving to Dunedin

The 75th anniversary celebrations, held in early April 1980, included a Past versus Present and other cricket matches at Hagley Oval, a banquet and ball at the Winter Garden, another evening function at the Hagley Sports Centre and a golf match at Harewood.

After seven years as club captain, Alan Jamieson stepped up to begin a term of president which was to extend for the next quarter-century, leading up to the club's centenary. The heavy off-field workload did not affect his on-field performances in the lower grades. In 2001/02 Jamieson won the Tom Burtt Memorial Trophy for most wickets in any grade; he had previously held that piece of silverware in 1970/71.

The early 1980s were marked by consistently high performances throughout the grades, as St Albans won the Petersen Shield as the top all-round club in Canterbury for 1980/81, 1981/82 and 1982/83. There were to be three more successes before the decade was over and four more in the 1990s.

Individual feats were notable in 1982/83. Ann McKenna (88 not out) and Vicki Burtt (148 not out) established a new women's record partnership of 242 unbroken, Paul Rutledge claimed 10 wicket-keeping dismissals in a match and President's grade batsman John Coffey scored unbeaten centuries on three consecutive Saturdays.

Paul Rutledge: more than twice as many dismissals for St Albans than any other wicket-keeper

and the subsequent extending out of the balcony (below)

Some major rebuilding took place at the clubrooms in late 1984. The existing changing area was extended, the upstairs lounge was lengthened and a separate changing room and entranceway added downstairs with extra showers and toilets. A building bought for 175 pounds in 1956 was now valued for insurance purposes as having a replacement worth of $346,000.

On the field, Rutledge demolished the old Canterbury club wicket-keeping record, Geoff Smith surpassed Frank O'Brien's senior men's record for most catches and Ann McKenna toured India with the New Zealand women's team.

The focus centred on the men's and women's first grade sides as the eighties advanced. The women sparked the sequence of successes with competition wins in 1983/84 and for three seasons from 1985/86. The men not only fell into step in 1986/87 - their first triumph for 22 years - but went on to equal the Canterbury record of four consecutive two-day championship victories. For good measure, they added the one-day title in 1987/88.

McKenna and Burtt provided the experience and bundles of runs, and Kirsty Bond (later Flavell), Catherine Campbell, Sarah Illingworth and Brigit Legg were others to make strong contributions to the women's dominance.

All-rounder Neil Francis was the astute captain of a men's team which included players of the calibre of Mark Priest, Andrew Nuttall, Roger Ford, Lyn Sparks, Max Bremner, Ben Harris, Geoff Smith and Paul Rutledge.

But it was 18-year-old medium-pacer Brett Harrison who raised eyebrows with a club record bowling analysis of nine wickets for 12 runs from 49 deliveries against Marist.

The 1987/88 summer was something of a Harris benefit. With the senior generation of club stalwarts John and Zin nodding approvingly, Ben Harris accumulated a club record 1040 runs (plus 21 catches), young Chris Harris commenced his senior career with an unbeaten half-century, and Tim Harris also featured in the championship-winning first grade team.

Even though the men kept on their winning ways in 1988/89, with second grade winning as well, and Mark Priest (Young New Zealand) and Chris Harris (New Zealand under-20 and under-19) gaining national honours, pride of place went to the inclusion of four St Albans players - Brigit Legg, Kirsty Bond, Sarah Illingworth, and mid-tour replacement Catherine Campbell - in the New Zealand women's World Cup tournament team in Australia.

The decade ended on a high with Priest being promoted into the full New Zealand team. He could hardly have been left out after capturing nine wickets for 95 runs (12-162 in the match) for Canterbury against Otago. Legg and Campbell, later joined by Bond for the one-dayers, extended their White Ferns careers against Australia.

Brett Harrison: extraordinary figures of 9-12 from 8.1 overs - still a record in all Christchurch one-day cricket

Chris Harris joined Priest on the international scene in 1990/91, following in the footsteps of father Zin, and his unbeaten 170 was the highest senior score for the club since Sam Guillen's 162 not out 25 years earlier. But the men's first XI slipped down the table when attempting the unique feat of winning a fifth consecutive two-day title. The women compensated for that by regaining their championship status and having Illingworth and Bond chosen for New Zealand.

Captained by Ben Harris, and with new professional Garfield Charles outstanding with bat and ball in both competitions, the first grade men won the 1991/92 two-day championship and shared the one-day title. Chris Harris went to his first World Cup, something which was to become a regular occurrence.

St Albans truly provided the brains trust for the White Ferns against Australia and to their World Cup in England, with Illingworth captain, McKenna coach and Bond also in the side. Long-serving spinner Andrew Nuttall overtook Tom Burtt's club record of 26,732 deliveries in senior cricket and a young bloke named Chris Martin arrived from Christchurch Boys High School.

The first grade men claimed their sixth two-day championship in eight years in 1993/94 and qualified top of the one-day competition. Five other men's grades also triumphed and Mark Priest was both Canterbury's Player of the Year and the Trust Bank Club Player of the Year. Not to be outdone, Illingworth, McKenna and Bond retained their respective roles in New Zealand's Rosebowl victory over Australia. Illingworth also compiled three club centuries during the season.

Sarah Illingworth: captained New Zealand 35 times including a World Cup final at Lord's

Justine Russell increased St Albans contingent in the White Ferns camp against Australia and India in 1994/95. Rutledge reached 400 wicket-keeping dismissals - almost 250 more than the next best - and promptly handed over the gloves to concentrate on his batting. Occasional cameo appearances later nudged his total up to 403. The New Zealand selectors must have had a brief fit of sanity, for the harshly treated Priest played alongside Harris for the Black Caps one-day side in South Africa.

Collectively, the women ruled in 1995/96, claiming championships in all four grades. Russell left for Australia but Dutch (and future New Zealand) international Nicola Payne was a valuable addition. Individually, the highlight was Chris Harris' magnificent innings of 130 in a losing World Cup match against Australia in India. St Albans provided not only the coach (McKenna) and captain (Illingworth), but also the manager (Kay Gilray), when the national women's team toured England. Craig Cumming broke into the Canterbury side; he was later to wear the black cap from Otago.

Nicola Payne: prolific run-scorer for St Albans and Canterbury

Kirsty Flavell (née Bond) became the first player to score a double century in a women's Test match while in England in 1996, a magnificent achievement. On her return, however, she retired and transferred to Auckland. The move was temporary and Kirsty now coaches Canterbury. Illingworth also retired after 15 outstanding seasons of senior cricket. Meanwhile, Chris Harris set a new Canterbury batting record of 251 not out against Central Districts at Rangiora and became the first Cantabrian to register more than one double century in a first-class season. Harry got two, plus a score of 198. St Albans held the Petersen Shield for the fourth time in the 1990s.

After compiling 883 runs in her second season with us, Payne (125 not out) shared a new first grade women's partnership record of 245 unbroken with Jo Lawler (99 not out) against South Canterbury in 1997/98. Priest had another all-too-brief recall to the Black Caps to keep Harris company.

St Albans was blessed with so much depth in its women's section in 1998/99 that two first grade teams were entered. In a thrilling last round the Blue team, inspired by coaching guru McKenna, surged through from fourth to grab the two-day title. That was the highlight of a near clean sweep of the women's silverware, as the club won six of eight available trophies.

Priest assured himself of a permanent place in Canterbury folklore by surpassing Sir Richard Hadlee's record with 290 first-class wickets, then retired. We had gained the services of a new coach and top-order batsman in Cumbrian Steven Knox, who was to become a regular in our ranks.

After having commuted between the Netherlands and New Zealand, Payne settled in this country and made her New Zealand debut alongside Catherine Campbell and Helen Watson in 1999/00. Watson and Amuria Marsh were New Zealand A selections, emulating the recognition of male counterparts Jarrod Englefield and Chris Martin.

Kirsty Flavell (née Bond):
the first woman to score
a Test double century

The new millennium and beyond

The storm of the decade preceded the drought of the century as the men's first grade team, captained by Knox and with Englefield contributing four centuries, reclaimed the two-day championship in 2000/01.

Martin was called to South Africa to reinforce a New Zealand team which already included Harris. At Lincoln, Campbell played in the pulsating four-run victory over Australia to win the women's World Cup. It was Campbell's fourth cup tournament since 1988 and her swansong. Payne was also a member of the White Ferns squad, while at club level she scored 132 and joined with Beth McNeill (94) to equal the all-time partnership record of 245 against Sydenham.

In 2001/02 the men retained their two-day trophy, overcoming the sudden departure of captain-coach Darron Reekers in mid-season. Neil Fletcher took over the captaincy and Ian Blanchett was our English professional. A total of seven grade wins also included the women's one-day and two-day competitions and the men's knock-out final. Harris and Martin were Black Caps and Sarah Burke was to have joined Payne on the cancelled White Ferns tour to India. Emily Travers, who joined us from Palmerston North, captained and McNeill played in the New Zealand A team in Australia.

Knox returned to lead the first grade men to the one-day title in 2002/03. Harris, Payne and Burke were our internationals, though Payne was to retire after eight seasons with St Albans and move to Wellington. She left with a club record of 10 centuries, one more than the legendary Phyllis Blackler. Burke, McNeill and Rowan Milburn were in the New Zealand A side.

Steven Knox: captained St Albans to one two-day and two one-day titles as overseas professional

St Albans was again to the forefront of the 99th (2003/04) inter-districts season, with the senior men claiming their fourth one-day title and the women winning every grade from first (for the 29th time) to fourth. The Petersen Shield was also back in the trophy cabinet after an absence of six years.

Martin, having earned a Black Caps recall, produced this country's best bowling analysis (11 for 180) against South Africa during the home Test series and became the fastest New Zealander to capture 50 Test wickets. Harris extended his illustrious one-day career, while Burke, McNeill, Aimee Mason and Amanda Green were chosen for the White Ferns from our club.

The first grade men's season was played under the shadow of having the two-day competition numbers reduced from nine to six in 2004/05. St Albans was never under threat, finishing second. Although the Saints did not come marching in at the national one-day club finals in Auckland the experience will be invaluable when they return to represent Canterbury in April 2005.

By then the club will inevitably have achieved more team and individual successes and players in all grades will have experienced the highs and lows that are liberally sprinkled throughout a cricketing summer.

We will also have celebrated our first 100 years, taken a new guard, and set off in pursuit of our double century.

They also serve ...

While the feats of the cricketers out in the middle are the most visible attributes of any sports club, none would survive without the selfless efforts of those who work away in the background.

St Albans owes so much to a large group of professional and dedicated administrators over the years, from those who were involved in the formation of the district scheme in 1905 to the present day.

Other clubs have felt the strength of St Albans over the last 25 or so years can be attributed to a talented group of officials who have continued the outstanding deeds of such as Charles Collins, Bob Knowles, Ian Dempsey, Arthur Graves and many other members who held office at club, Canterbury and, in some cases, New Zealand levels.

Among the most prominent in modern times have been:

Alan Jamieson, the president and chairman for the last 25 years. Alan has overseen extensive building alterations, the staging of twilight cricket, the introduction of professional coaches, the raising of the club's profile and without doubt has been the driving force and catalyst for many other club initiatives and development plans.

Selwyn Cox, club bar manager for more than 20 years. Selwyn's expertise and knowledge of the club's hospitality requirements have ensured a healthy and regular return from the bar.

Lindsay Serra, the treasurer since 1984, whose responsibilities have included IRD returns, fringe benefits, tax, PAYE, the payment of coaches and establishing new methods of financial reporting. Lindsay's adroit and accurate management of the club's accounts have been a cornerstone of the club's settled management practices.

Graham Curgenven, who has held a plethora of positions for a lengthy period, including chairman, subscriptions officer, webmaster and social coordinator.

Eleanor Horne, a thoroughly professional secretary for 14 years. Since her retirement in 1999 Eleanor has become the club's very popular caterer.

St Albans has also been fortunate to have had such efficient and accurate scorers such as the late Ron Johnson, Euan West, Mark Ogier, Geoff Gambles and Peter Mayell, who have all attained representative appointments in their own sphere. All have given their time and expertise in a cheerful and committed way.

St Albans has raised its first century in such a healthy state because of the whole-hearted contributions of so many men and women who filled the various official positions, and also those members and friends of the club who have freely given of their time when asked to help.

TEAMS OF THE CENTURY

The best St Albans XIs from 1905-2005

The teams overleaf were chosen by a group of former players, club presidents, life members, cricket media and historians (30 selectors for the men's team, 20 for the women's). Each chose their top XI and a 12th man from a list of players who had made at least 75 appearances for St Albans during their careers. The selections were heavily weighted towards their club cricket performances, while keeping in mind the balance of the team. The votes were then tallied to produce these two great teams of the century. We know that both teams will generate much discussion and debate.
